

Dr Katarzyna Fałęcka is Lecturer in Art History at the School of Arts and Cultures, Newcastle University, with expertise in modern and contemporary art from North Africa. She is a Humanities Fellow and coordinates the CAORC/Andrew W. Mellon Fellowship in Modern Art History at CEMAT. She has an international publication record and has published articles in African Arts and Third Text, as well as multiple book chapters, including the forthcoming contribution to A Companion to French Art, eds. Richard Taws and Natalie Adamson (Hoboken: Wiley & Sons, 2024). She is regularly invited to speak at universities and galleries in the UK, Germany, Lebanon, Tunisia, the US, and Canada, and held fellowships at the John Kluge Center at the Library of Congress; the African Art Department at the Free University Berlin; and the Merian Centre for Advanced Studies in the Maghreb, Tunis. Committed to widening audiences for research, she serves as interviewer for the Modern Art in the Maghrib podcast series and curated Beyond Metaphor: Women and War, an exhibition of contemporary art exploring Algeria's decolonisation, at apexart, New York in 2021.
