THE CENTER FOR MAGHRIB STUDIES IN TUNIS (CEMAT) PRESENTS A PODCAST LECTURE BY DR. DONIA SMAALI BOUHLILA ON:
“CHILD LABOR AND SCHOOLING IN TUNISIA”

Dr. Donia Smaali Bouhlila is an assistant-professor at faculté des sciences économiques et de gestion de Tunis El Manar. Her research interests include the quality of education in the Middle East and North Africa, the effect of socioeconomic status of students and wealth on education and the impact of child labor and chores on education. She currently focuses on Tunisia. They include the causes and consequences of students’ dropout, teacher training in Tunisia, the impact of the language on students’ educational performance.

Dr. Smaali Bouhlila has published several papers in English. In 2017, she received an award from the Comparative and International Education Society (CIES) in Atlanta (USA.) for her distinguished Service in educational reform. She is a board member in the International Journal of Educational Development.

The lecture was recorded on April 20, 2018 at the Centre d’études Maghrébines à Tunis (CEMAT).

Follow the link to listen to Dr. Smaali Bouhlila’s lecture: